HEART

FALLEN football idol Paul Gascoigne said yesterday he doesn't care if he ends up as a down-and-out living on the streets. The tormented ex-England hero reveals all in the Daily Star a day after being released from police cells following a bust-up with two photographers outside a nightclub. Booze-battling Gazza, 39, admitted that he often "just wanted to die" when depression took hold of him, adding: "Every day is a fight, but I'm a survivor." In a string of bizarre confessions he says he has found God - and is in love with Mickey Mouse. Full story: Page 7

Life in the fast plane

THIS dramatic photo shows two passenger planes apparently dangerously close to a mid-air collision above Britain. The jets, one from German airline Lufthansa and the other from Air France, were pictured near London's Heathrow airport yesterday. But no near-miss reports were filed to air traffic control company Nats. A spokeswoman said the jets were "stacked" as they waited for a landing slot - with one 1,000ft above the other. She added: "It shows how distances are distorted in clear blue skies with no clouds as reference points."

HOMES MISERY AS RATES GO UP

SIGN OF TIMES: Housing pressure

by ROSS KANIUK
HARD-UP home owners could be forced out after interest rates rose again yesterday.

The latest increase slapped an extra £16 on the monthly payment for a £100,000 mortgage. And the hike is likely to push thousands of households over the edge to repossession.

Limit

A Citizens' Advice Bureau spokesman said: "We know a lot of people have taken on mortgages that stretch them to the absolute limit. "So any increase in interest rates could spell disaster for them. "Anyone taking on a new mortgage must check very carefully whether they can afford it if interest rates rise further. "Those on the edge of debt should get advice as soon as possible."

Mortgage expert Ray Boulger, of brokers John Charcol, said the rise

HOW YOUR MORTGAGE WILL CHANGE

Monthly repayments for Halifax's Standard Variable Rate for a 25-year mortgage. The table shows the current 6.75% rate, the 7% it is likely to change to in the next few days, and the 7.25% some experts are predicting for early next year.

Loan	Repayment at 6.75%	At 7%	At 7.25%
£50,000	£345.45	£353.38	£361.40
£100,000	£690.91	£706.77	£722.80
£150,000	£1,036.36	£1,060.16	£1,084.21
£200,000	£1,381.82	£1,413.55	£1,445.61
£250,000	£1,727.27	£1,766.94	£1,807.01

could prove to be the "straw that broke the camel's back" for many borrowers.

A survey released by Bristol University this week found that nearly a quarter of homeowners would face real hardship if rates were to rise.

Interest rates are now at their highest since August 2001. The Bank of England lifted them by 0.25% to 5% yesterday to try to keep a lid on inflation.

It still might not be enough - some experts predict another increase in February if inflation, currently 2.4%, continues to exceed its 2% target.

Cover-up at court

JUDGES have been told to let solicitors and legal advisers wear the Islamic veil in court unless it interferes with the "interests of justice".

Lord Chief Justice, Lord Phillips of Worth Matravers, said judges should use their discretion after legal adviser Shabnam Mughal this week refused to remove her headwear at an immigration tribunal in Stoke-on-Trent, Staffs, despite the judge claiming he could not hear what she was saying.

Needed...parrots of the Caribbean

MOVIE bosses are hunting a parrot with the Eggs Factor to star in the new Pirates Of The Caribbean film.

by CAMERON MILLAR

Would-be Parrots Of The Caribbean will face Simon Cowell-like judges as they fight it out for a role.

The hopefuls will be screened by producers Disney to check for "foul beaks" - and swearing birds will be banned.

The most talented talker will act as the official "spokesparrot" for the DVD launch this month of the second Pirates film, Dead Man's Chest.

Spout

Then it will fly to the Caribbean island of Dominica to join stars Johnny Depp, 43, Keira Knightley, 21, and Orlando Bloom, 29, in the third instalment of the Hollywood hits.

But the pretty polly will have to start learning its lines straight away, so he or she can spout sea-faring phrases such as: "Oi, squidface!"

A Disney spokesman said: "This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for a parrot with a big personality. We hope to uncover the next A-list feathered superstar."

Mark Harden, animal trainer for the Pirates movies, who will help to judge the contestants, said: "The best way to get a bird to audition or perform well is to have a great relationship with it."

"It's good to teach them a selection of tricks that can be called on - like look left, look right, look up, flap your wings, hold your wings up, salute, and so on."

"Speaking is important but the most important thing is that the parrot can sit quietly on somebody's shoulder - in this case a pirate - and not muck around with the character's hair, hat or earrings."

Auditions will be held at Disney's HQ in Hammersmith, west London, on November 16. Bird owners can find details at www.potc.co.uk/parrots

SECRET CAMP IN THE BUSH!

TOP TIPS: Model Paula and actress Malandra are battling with, inset from top, Gaffney, Marsh and McLaren to be in the secret camp

EXCLUSIVE
 ■ from PETER DYKE in OZ

I'M A CELEBRITY bosses are set to give viewers double vision by adding a SECOND jungle camp with two more stars.

The new twist is designed to create more rows and rivalry than ever before on the ITV show.

The 10 celebs who have already flown out to the Australian Bush for the show – including gorgeous singer Mylene Klass, 28, and former Neighbours star Jason Donovan, 38 – have no idea that a rival camp will be set up right under their noses.

Two more celebs will be put in the secret rainforest site, far enough away so they can't see or hear what the rest get up to.

Bosses are now deciding which two stars they want to put in the second camp, before sending them off Down Under.

Among those being tipped to appear are model Paula Hamilton, 48, sports pundit and Daily Star columnist Rodney Marsh, 62, former Emmerdale star Malandra Burrows, 41, and punk godfather Malcolm McLaren, 60.

Stunt

Another hot tip is former EastEnders star Dean Gaffney, 28, who already has form when it comes to reality telly, having appeared in ITV's The Club.

A source said: "This is an amazing twist which will be a bit like this year's Big Brother, where two houses were running but one didn't know about the other."

"We haven't decided how long this stunt will carry on, or who might cross over between camps. But it's the biggest twist we've staged."

"Viewers will get used to seeing one set of stars in camp, then we'll spring a surprise for them by launching a second camp."

"It's going to be explosive and will cause some major arguments, which will make great TV."

Fans have been expecting a major new gimmick in this year's series because it is running for longer than before – almost three weeks.

Previous series have also provided surprises, with late-comers and new contestants put in the camp.

Show executive producer Richard Cowles had already teased that he had a big stunt up his sleeve to shock the new set of jungle stars.

He said: "There won't necessarily be safety in numbers. There is one big, never-before-seen surprise for the stars. Whether it's a welcome one remains to be seen."

● I'm A Celebrity starts on ITV1 at 9pm on Monday.

Faith's pillow talk

FUNNYGIRL Faith Brown, right, flew Down Under last night determined to prove she's got the biggest boomerangs in the jungle.

Faith, 65 – famous for her huge boobs – said: "Everyone tells me to bring a lilo because the beds are apparently hard in camp."

But, pointing to her breasts, she giggled: "I don't need any of that, I've got my own inflatables."

HUNKY Matt Willis was mistakenly held on suspicion of carrying drugs when he flew into Brisbane.

Customs officers thought the hemp seeds which former Busted star Matt, 23, puts on salads were cannabis.

OFF THE GEST LIST

SHOW bosses went into panic mode last night when oddball David Gest, right, apparently went missing.

They thought Gest, 53 – the ex-husband of singer Liza Minnelli – was due to arrive in Brisbane last night. Worried TV crew members who met a plane found he was not on board – and feared that he had pulled out.

Then they double-checked his flight details and had to admit they had boobed – he was not due to arrive until this morning.

£100M...YOU COULD BUY THREE WAYNE ROONEYS FOR THAT

THE Euromillions draw has not been won for 10 weeks and lottery fever is gripping Britain with organisers predicting a 400% boom in ticket sales – that's 500 sold every second in the run-up to tonight's draw.

The £100m pot could be the biggest lottery prize ever paid out if it's won by a single ticket holder.

It's enough to buy England and Manchester United ace Wayne Rooney three times over – with £10m to spare. Here, NADINE LINGE picks out a few more amazing lotto facts...

NINE countries take part in Euromillions – Britain, Austria, Belgium, France, Ireland, Portugal, Spain, Luxembourg and Switzerland.

TICKETS cost £1.50 and players need to match five main numbers from one to 50 and two Lucky Star numbers from one to nine. There are 11 other prize levels – ranging from a tenner to hundreds of thousands of pounds.

ONLY one British player has ever won the jackpot – Marion Richardson, from Gateshead, Tyne and Wear, who scooped £16.7m last April.

THE biggest single UK Lotto winner was 60-year-old Iris Jeffrey, from Belfast, who won £20.1m in July 2004.

THE biggest ever UK Lotto winners were Paul Maddison, 43, and Mark Gardiner, 33, of East Sussex, who won £22.5m in 1995.

SIX members of the Benson family from Hull shared £20.1m in 1995.

ACCORDING to Coutts & Co, The Queen's bankers, if you won this Friday's estimated £100m jackpot, you would earn £12,300 a DAY in interest – or £4.5m a year.

IF YOU stacked up £100m in £50 notes, it would be 200 yards high – three times the height of Nelson's Column.

IT WOULD take a Coutts cashier 138 hours to count £100m in £50 notes – just under six days of solid counting.

THE most frequently drawn EuroMillions ball is 50, having been drawn 13 times this year – most recently on October 27.

THE least frequently drawn EuroMillions ball is 13, which has been drawn only once this year – on April 7.

IF YOU won the £100m jackpot you would be guaranteed a place as the 554th richest person in Britain – tying with the Osbournes, boxer Lennox Lewis and artist Damien Hirst.

Bling 'n' a prayer for Kelly

SIZZLING Kelly Brook has vowed to blow the £100 million jackpot on bling if her EuroMillions numbers come up.

Kelly, 26, who is engaged to actor Billy Zane, 40, said she would spend the dosh on jewellery like the Chopard gems she wears in this sexy photo.

She grinned: "I would definitely buy some fabulous diamonds for my gran, my mother and myself. I'd probably spend it all in a week. "I would also take all my family on holiday for Christmas – somewhere hot and lovely."

Rumble in the jungle

THEY had us fooled!

We complained that this year's series of I'm A Celebrity was lacking in stars.

Hardly anybody under the age of 30 had heard of ex-BBC newsreader Jan Leeming, while hardly anybody full-stop knew of Scott Henshall.

But today we reveal that there's a secret second camp with another two contestants.

Put the best of the two groups together and there should be enough big names.

Soccer legend Rodney Marsh, model Paula Hamilton and ex-EastEnders Dean Gaffney are tipped as possible additions.

Producers have taken a gamble in interfering with the format of such a successful show.

But it's a risk worth taking, as last year's effort was short of conflict and turmoil.

Here's hoping the two-camp trick will give us jungle mayhem!

Blame bills on Brown

WE HAVE always doubted Gordon Brown's claim to be an economic genius.

Now even the Chancellor's own supporters must be having second thoughts.

Yesterday interest rates were put up to 5% – the highest level for five years.

Families will be faced with paying around an extra £20 a month on a £100,000 mortgage. Credit card bills could also be hiked up.

And all this comes on top of rising unemployment and soaring power bills.

A further above-inflation jump in council tax is just around the corner.

The truth is that the economy has succeeded in spite of Mr Brown, not because of him.

Now the effects of 70-plus stealth taxes and reckless spending are becoming clear.

Personal bankruptcies hit record levels over the summer and this latest interest rate rise will further boost that sad figure.

Millions of people are close to financial breakdown – and Mr Brown is to blame.

Crazy footie legend rambles in his favourite paper

DAILY

GAZZA: I HAVE FOUND GOD & MICKEY MOUSE

Picture: WILL WINTERCROSS

TORMENTED football legend Paul Gascoigne yesterday said he counted on God – and Mickey Mouse – to save him from his demons.

A day after he was released from police cells, the 39-year-old former England hero spoke out about his crazy life.

In a series of bizarre confessions, Gazza revealed how he...

- Loves Disney World more than anywhere else and wants to live there with Mickey Mouse.
- Buys bottles of whisky for drunks and doesn't care if he end up a homeless down-and-out himself.
- Sometimes "just wants to die".
- Has found God, who he says has kept him alive.

The confessions are sure to add to fans' and friends' concerns that the booze-battling star is dangerously close to cracking up.

We revealed yesterday how Gazza was arrested after being accused of racially abusing a photographer and punching another in a boozy bust-up outside a London nightclub. He was held in the police cells for nine hours on Wednesday.

Yesterday Gazza admitted that his self-destructive streak left even him baffled, adding: "Maybe it's because sometimes I just want to die."

But he proved that he is still a big kid at heart by revealing his love of Mickey Mouse.

Dream

He said: "Disney World in Florida is my favourite place on the planet."

"I fing love Mickey Mouse and every time I see the Cinderella Castle it's my dream, it really is."

The former Spurs ace said he had also turned to reli-

by IAIN BURCHELL

gion to try to tackle his problems. He told the December issue of Esquire magazine, out now: "I've just started to believe in God. I read the Bible now and again."

"I'm not a Bible-basher but I believe in God because he has kept me alive – touch wood."

Gazza – branded "daft as a brush" by ex-England manager Sir Bobby Robson, now 73 – admitted he was battling inner torment, but said he was determined to win. He added: "I don't mind if I end up on the streets. I'm one of those people who know that the more I give, the more I will get back."

"If I can save someone's life, I'll do it. I don't give a sh about my life. If I see an alcoholic on the street, I will buy him a bottle of whisky because I know the pain he is going through."

"I wake up every fing day with 27 different problems and addictions to face. Every day is a fight. I have to fight because I'm a survivor."

Gazza is famed for crying when he was sent off in the 1990 World Cup semi-final.

Sad

And he still likes to weep, because he says it helps him battle depression.

Asked how he coped with the bad days, he said: "I either get on the phone or watch a sad film, because I know it will make me cry and crying helps me to get all the emotions out."

He also recalled how he once ended up with nine motorbikes after a massive booze bender.

He said: "I woke up the next morning with nine Harley-Davidsons and no idea where I'd got them from."

"I gave away six and kept three. I spent £1,000 on the drinking session... and £110,000 on the bikes."

A BRITISH woman was last night charged with hoarding terrorist handbooks.

Unemployed Samina Malik, 22, is alleged to have built up a vast terror library including the al-Qaida Manual, the Terrorists Handbook and the Mujahideen Poisons Handbook. It would be capable of giving plotters a perfect blueprint of how to kill on a chilling scale.

Malik allegedly had terror manuals on using anti-tank weapons, rocket-propelled grenades and hand-to-hand combat.

The charges state that Malik also had a folder "likely to be useful to a person committing or preparing an act of terrorism". She is accused of possessing "miscellaneous jottings" connected with terrorism.

Malik, of Southall, west London, was charged with four offences under the 2000 Terrorism Act.

She is due to appear before City of Westminster Magistrates' Court in central London this morning.

Sohail Anjum, 29, is still in custody after he was charged as part of the same investigation last week.

He is accused of planning to take terrorist materials to Islamabad in Pakistan.

EXTRA SPECIAL:

RICK HAS THE FACE FOR FUN!

Chubbies raise a chuckle

TELLY genius Ricky Gervais has the perfect face for comedy - fact.

Scientists who blended 179 features from Britain's top 20 comics came up with a photofit that looked just like 45-year-old Ricky.

And they found that audiences are most likely to laugh if a performer has a "feminine" appearance ... round face, small forehead, wide nose, big lips, large eyes and high cheekbones.

Feminine

Psychologist Anthony Little, who led the research, said: "Soft, feminine features put us at ease and encourage us to relax."

"This is conducive to laughter and enjoyment."

Ricky - star of The Office and Extras - was used in the computer study, along with comics including Peter Kay, 33, Billy Connolly, 63, Lee Evans, 42, Eddie Izzard, 44, Graham

by MARK SOLOMONS

Norton, 43, Jo Brand, 49, and Steve Coogan, 41.

But researchers, commissioned by Jongleurs chain of comedy clubs, found one exception to prove the rule - Sacha Baron Cohen, 35, alias Borat and Ali G.

Sacha has a "masculine", serious and dominant face with a high forehead and chiselled jaw. Dr Little explains: "That might be why his routine depends on disguise and alter-egos."

"The outfits, exaggerated accent and feigned slow-wittedness help create a false sense of superiority in his interviewees."

"The humour lies not in making the respondent laugh but in convincing them Borat is serious, if harmless and ill-informed."

Last night Ricky said: "All these years I assumed my global success was down to my acute observations and consummate skills. Turns out it's because I've got a fat girly face."

Aliens 'target Britain'

■ by CAMERON MILLAR
BRITAIN is a major target for an alien takeover now we've closed our X Files bureau.

Nick Pope, who used to run the Ministry of Defence UFO project, says we ignore sightings of flying saucers at peril.

The shutdown of the project mirrors TV series The X Files, starring David Duchovny, 46, and Gillian Anderson, 38, who were ditched as FBI agents investigating UFO sightings and other ghostly goings on.

Nick said: "The consequences of getting this wrong could be huge.

Uneasy

"If you reported a UFO sighting now I am sure you would only get back a standard letter telling you not to worry."

While there is no evidence of UFO hostile intent, he said it cannot be ruled out.

"One is left with the uneasy feeling that if it turned out to be so, there is very little we could do about it," he said.

"If you believe these things are extra-terrestrial craft then you cannot rule out that what is happening is some kind of covert reconnaissance."

A spokesman for the MoD insisted that all UFO sightings are investigated for "evidence to suggest that UK airspace has been compromised by hostile or unauthorised air activity".

Death of CD music

SOARING demand for music on mobile phones will kill off CDs in just five years.

The forecast came after tunes bought on phones rocketed 100% in a year.

A survey found six out of 10 users under the age of 24 have bought tracks to be listened to on their mobiles, and the pollsters predicted the end of CDs.

It was claimed music bought on mobiles could overtake computer downloads within five years.

UK customers with phone network 3, which carried out the survey, buy more than a million audio tracks and videos a month.

4 PREM BOSSES IN BIG MATCH BETS PROBE

GAGGING ORDER:
Bookie Victor Chandler

■ by PAUL MALLEY

FOUR top football bosses are at the centre of a multi-million pound betting probe.

One of the Premiership managers is alleged to have gambled millions in one year - racking up massive losses on English and European football and horse-racing.

He and three other bosses are said to have wagered the cash on top-flight matches over 12 months - often breaking FA regulations.

The FA yesterday promised to investigate the allegations as its rules ban managers and players from betting on competitions they are involved in - even if the precise wagers are not on games involving their own clubs.

Privacy

The shock revelations have been made by a disgruntled former accounts manager who worked for a leading bookmakers - Gibraltar-based Victor Chandler.

Chandler secured a gagging order in the High Court yesterday keeping the names of the bosses - and some players - from being published.

PR guru Max Clifford, who has been working on behalf of Chandler, said legal action was taken to maintain "clients' right to privacy".

But the FA is now set to demand access to Chandler's accounts and quiz the men allegedly involved.

Speculation over the names was last night the talk of football.

An FA spokesman said: "We will investigate these reports to see if there has been any breach of our regulations."

"Our rules are in place to stop people benefiting from insider information."

The latest controversy follows accusations by BBC's Panorama of bungs involving managers and agents.

Next month Lord Stevens is due to deliver the findings of his inquiry into alleged illegal payments in the Premier League.

Last night a senior FA figure said: "Things are coming out which have not come out before, whether it's the Stevens inquiry, Panorama or these latest claims."

"In a way it is good, because it shows we are determined to investigate any wrongdoing connected to the game."

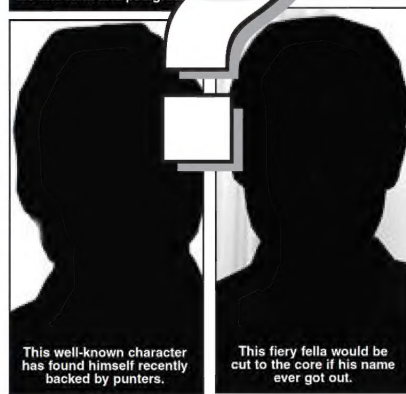

The maximum punishment available for breaking the FA rules is a life ban from football.

If this manager was a greyhound, punters would love his fine form and pedigree.

A well-respected leader who couldn't come from a finer footballing dynasty.

This well-known character has found himself recently backed by punters.

This fiery fella would be cut to the core if his name ever got out.

Wobbly singer

pops back as K-Fed flops

LET'S MAKE A HIT, BRIT

■ OOPS! Giggly Britney is supported by a minder at the studios in New York

■ OFF KEY: Kevin out clubbing in Chicago. Below left, the apartment block in LA where he's been staying.

Picture: SPLASH

■ by NIGEL PAULEY

BUBBLY Britney Spears is planning a comeback with her old pop svengali as she bounces back from her marriage split.

And the giggling singer was certainly in high spirits as she hit a recording studio for a late-night session looking a bit tipsy.

But Britney, 24, showed she still needed the support of her friends - a minder had to clutch her arm as she tottered down the road.

Onlookers were surprised to see her wedding ring still in place, despite having dumped husband Kevin Federline, 28, by text message on Tuesday.

Brit spent several hours working on three new tracks at the Sony Music Studios in New York.

A studio source said: "Producers thought it would be a good idea to get her into the studio while she's in New York, regardless of what is going on in her private life."

Britney was earlier seen on the town with former manager Larry Rudolph, 37. Sources claim he is proving a "real rock" to the singer.

Dumped

They have kissed and made up two years after Britney ditched him to manage her own career.

A Hollywood source revealed: "He's supporting her through this difficult time and is helping her plan her comeback."

"He was sidelined as Federline got his hooks into Britney. But now she's realised she needs people like him around her, rather than K-Fed."

While Brit was setting out to get her career back on track, her husband saw his take another dip.

K-Fed - now apparently living in a swanky apartment in Los Angeles - hit the clubs in Chicago after another disappointing concert to promote his debut album Playing With Fire.

Concert promoters had to give away tickets to his show at the city's 1,600-seat House of Blues after just 250 sold at the full $25 asking price.

During the gig, he shouted to the girls in the crowd: "I'm single now - who wants to dance with a pimp?"

Afterwards, he partied at Chicago's Cabaret Club until 3.30am.

And he awoke the next day with more than a hangover - he announced he'd axed the rest of his tour due to poor ticket sales.

AA snub lost mum

THE AA refused to turn out to help a mum and two young children stranded at a dark and lonely spot because they could not find the isolated lane on their computer map system.

After keeping Trish Milne, 42, and the youngsters waiting for two hours the AA said the road - on the edge of Dartmoor in Devon - did not exist and they would not be coming.

Trish, from Bere Alston, said: "It is a disgrace that they left us in an isolated and vulnerable location."

The AA has apologised and said they would be contacting the family.

Oxfam's so Posh

VICTORIA Beckham's recent trip to Oxfam has boosted the fortunes of the charity.

Ex-Spice Girl Posh, 32, was pictured visiting the Notting Hill store in west London and now it says clothing donations are up 70% and the number of shoppers has tripled.

Other Oxfam stores across the UK have also seen a boom in business since her visit last week.

Area manager Diane O'Brien said: "The impact Victoria Beckham has had on the store is incredible."

"People are buying and donating more and we've had some great pieces from Dolce & Gabbana and Chanel."

another booze-filled night out

WASTED

by NADINE LINGE

CATWALK queen Kate Moss and rocker Pete Doherty looked totally trashed after another night on the tiles.

They emerged from an evening's boozing bleary-eyed, sweating and seemingly barely able to focus.

Junkie Pete, 27, was spotted with what appeared to be a blob of white powder up his nose, sparking rumours that he's back on drugs despite a spell in celeb rehab clinic The Priory.

Even though the party-loving pair called it a night at 11.30pm, they both seemed worse for wear.

Normally well-groomed Kate, 32, hid behind her hair and seemed barely able to keep her head up, while Pete clutched a cigarette and stared blankly into space.

Their day out started at 2pm when the couple enjoyed a light lunch at London's exclusive Cipriani restaurant.

But as they left Pete was snapped with what seemed to be white powder lodged in his left nostril.

The besotted pair split up for a few hours as slender Kate hit her Harbour Club gym.

Party

After her workout she nipped back to her Primrose Hill pad in north London and changed into a gold sequined minidress and feather coat for a star-studded fashion party.

But Kate and Pete spent just 15 minutes at the bash to mark 90 years of Vogue magazine before heading off to a backstreet pub in the East End of London.

The blonde was hailed as guest of honour cos she's appeared on the cover of the fashion bible more times than anyone else.

Inside, the Croydon-born babe and Doherty schmoozed and mingled with executives and fashion bigwigs, sipping the finest bubbly.

But she couldn't wait to escape from the swish Serpentine Gallery in west London and head across town.

They ditched the party and plumped for The Golden Heart boozier in trendy Shoreditch, described by regulars as an old-fashioned pub.

After a few pints and glasses of house white, the couple then went to catch a live set by Manchester three-piece I Am Kloot at the nearby 93 Feet East venue.

They called it a night at just 11.30pm, early by Kate and Pete's rock 'n' roll standards, and took a cab back to her pad.

A guest at the Vogue party revealed: "Kate stayed only long enough to have one drink and ran off after she'd had her picture taken."

"She had to drag Pete away as he was deep in conversation with Bryan Ferry's ex-wife Lucy. "But Kate obviously feels more comfortable nowadays in her evenings off staying away from fashion types."

Last week she snubbed the British Fashion Awards, where she was to be crowned Model Of The Year, to have dinner with Pete instead.

KATE'S NEW MATE: Tearaway Vicky

KATE Moss is turning chav to star in Little Britain – as one of Vicky Pollard's gobby pals. She makes her theatre debut in a special Comic Relief night of Little Britain's stage show.

And David Walliams reckons she is perfect for a hilarious role as a shell-suit-clad mate of Vicky (Matt Lucas, 32).

Cheeky

David, 35, said: "I've known Kate for a little while. She came to our show one night and liked it."

"We thought, let's be cheeky and see if we can convince her – and she was up for it. We think it will be brilliant."

Kate's Little Britain Big Night performance is scheduled for November 22 at London's Hammersmith Apollo theatre – where her ex, Russell Brand, 31, is also appearing.

PAEDO TOOK OVER GIRLS' COMPUTERS

Perv gets 10 years for net sex terror

AN internet paedophile who took control of teenage girls' computers was caged yesterday.

Adrian Ringland, 36, used advanced programmes to take over youngsters' PCs.

After showing off his control over their systems by moving cursors around, opening files and switching on printers, the dad-of-two demanded his victims strip for him.

■ by IAIN BURCHELL

One girl said his power over her PC was like something out of the science-fiction movie The Matrix.

Another described her ordeal as "internet rape" and said she was almost driven to suicide.

Self-taught IT expert Ringland posed as a teenager and emailed his victims a Trojan virus that let him take over their computers.

His first victim, a 14-year-old Canadian, was warned: "I want a nude pic of u now or ur computers fed."

Ringland built up a collection of explicit images.

But he was tracked down by Canada's Mounties to his home 4,000 miles away in Ilkerton, Derby.

Lisa Wilding, prosecuting, told Inner London

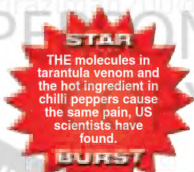

JAILED: Ringland

Crown Court: "This is a startling tale that will bring home the horrors that lurk within the internet and the minds of some individuals who use it."

Ringland pleaded guilty to 20 charges involving three girls in Britain and one in Canada.

Emma Edham, defending, claimed Ringland committed the offences after his father died and his mother fell seriously ill.

Sad Syd's £1m stash

PINK Floyd founder Syd Barrett, who spent 30 years apparently living on a shoestring, left more than £1million in his will.

He was the inspiration for the band in its early years but suffered a breakdown after leaving in 1968.

Barrett died a recluse in Cambridge in July from pancreatic cancer, aged 60.

His £1.2m estate was split between his two sisters and two brothers.

JUDE Law, who dates high maintenance beauty Sienna Miller, insists that he can't stand women who are too concerned with their looks.

The 33-year-old even went a step further and said that he's turned on by "intelligence".

That should rule out Sienna, 24, then... she recently made headlines after renaming American city Pittsburgh as Sh*tsburgh. Hardly a cerebral statement.

DENISE Richards accidentally injured a couple of old dears after throwing a laptop off a balcony, as you do.

The Sex, Lies and Secrets star, 35, had a fight with a photographer at a Canadian hotel and hurled his computer onto an 80-year-old in a wheelchair and her pal.

A witness said: "Medics attended to them in the lobby and there was a younger movie-type person assuring everyone they were going to be OK." Easy does it, luv...

QUICKIE..

PEACHES Geldof has turned her back on the size zero brigade – as she wants to give her admirers more to love.

The 17-year-old said: "I looked at photos of Kate Moss and Nicole Richie and wondered, 'Should I look this way?' I used to watch what I ate, and even got quite skinny. But I didn't get as much attention from men – and women – as I do these days. I've got a little belly now, but I think it's cute."

CATE Blanchett has reacquainted us with our breakfasts by urging women to sleep with pensioners instead of toyboys.

The 37-year-old is married to writer Andrew Lupton, 42, and can't comprehend why some ladies date younger fellas.

"It's not something I can relate to," she said. "I would understand sleeping with a 60-year-old man more. Think about it." We'd rather not if it's all the same...

STEAMY RAMSAY

HAS Gordon Ramsay turned into Swiss Toni? Making a meal is a lot like making love to a beautiful woman, says the Stalin of the Stove.

He explained: "Cooking is like sex, it's about giving pleasure. You can't climax too early."

And after a hard day's "love-making" in the kitchen, he lets off steam in his own dungeon. Ramsay admitted: "I've got a dungeon with a straitjacket and weights. That's where I work up an appetite after a long day at work."

Lucky you – that's made us lose our appetites.

LADY LOVE FOR EVA & BEYONCÉ

IF you're prone to girl-on-girl fantasy you might want to pinch yourself now because Beyoncé Knowles and Eva Longoria are set to play lesbian lovers.

The beautiful twosome have revealed that they'll be taking the lead roles in Sofia Coppola's treatment of Victorian love-fest Tippling The Velvet.

Controversial Coppola, 35, is hoping to bring the novel by Sarah Waters, 40, alive for Hollywood with all its sexual repression detailed in glorious Technicolor.

So who better to play sexy music hall star Kitty Butler and her lover Nan Astley in this 1890s romp than two of the sexiest women in the world?

One of our Goss spies caught up with Beyoncé, 25, and Eva, 31, at the L'Oréal Legends Gala benefit for Ovarian Cancer Research in New York.

Giggle

Desperate Housewives star Eva said: "Yes it's true, we're talking about doing that... it's such a wonderful novel, a beautiful love story."

Beyoncé added: "We've had Brokeback Mountain so the time is right for this divine novel to get the same treatment."

And our mole told us that the ladies couldn't contain their excitement. "Beyoncé and Eva couldn't stop talking about the new project. Eva's character dresses up like a man for music hall so she's excited about that."

"And they weren't at all coy about the sex scenes, in fact they both seemed to think it would be more of a giggle than doing the same work with a man. It's going to be very hot."

If it causes anything like the furore the BBC adaptation sparked four years ago, we imagine cold showers will be called for across the globe.

And that should be a couple of Oscar nominations in the bag, especially if they chuck in a few prosthetics.

And not that type, you smutbags.

Babes star in lesbian movie

Stick to the diet, Lil

THE Smile has been wiped off Lily Allen's face, thanks to the stick insects at a recent Paris fashion show.

The cheeky chav, 21, is a dinky size 10, but has considered taking laxatives to emulate the skeletal clothes horses and fit into more doll-like prom dresses.

She explained: "I was looking at all the models. Gemma Ward looked great. It struck me how skinny models are. They made me very aware of my own size 10. It's depressing.

"The first Chanel dress I tried on was so gorgeous. But it was so small I would need to go on a laxative diet to wear it."

"The outfits were all sample size – for models – and were too tight for me."

"But they wouldn't have gone with my shoes anyway."

Or your Elizabeth Duke Jewellery and trademark cider can.

HAVE YOU GOT SOME JUICY GOSSIP FOR US?

HUSH HUSH

WHICH author has failed to deliver on deadlines because of a growing drug dependency? The scribe started using Bolivia's finest to maintain energy levels but found that attention span has become a casualty. Now there are several angry publishing magnates with an axe to grind.

Paris is out to Play

HAVE the designers of the new PlayStation 3 added a sapphic love chip to the design?

We only ask because the foxy ladies seemed far more keen to play with each other than the console at its Tinseltown launch.

Paris Hilton, 25, and her former arch enemy Nicole Richie, also 25, went one further than kissing and making up at the shindig.

The fruity duo dirty danced, plumped each other's naughty pillows and generally made k d laing look like a maneater.

Lindsay Lohan, 20, was also enjoying a bit of lady love across the room.

La Lohan wore a rather pointless black shift, which she kept lifting as she gyrated for her female admirers.

Our woman with the sensible shoes said: "It's fortunate Lindsay remembered to put some bloomers on this time. The guys got so carried away watching, they broke loads of PS3 handsets."

Hope they fixed those overworked joysticks.
